6. Officially recognised ways of acquiring the certificate

Vocational education and training is a combination of work based and/or realistic working environment based activities. Learners are required to build a portfolio of naturally occurring evidence in real working environments.

A VRQ is competence based and approximately 80% and 20% of the vocational education is school/training centre-based and workplace-based respectively. A typical holder of this qualification has, on average, taken 448 hours to complete the qualification. Where appropriate prior learning may be taken into account.

This qualification can only be offered by an institution/provider ('centre') that has been approved and checked by ITEC and therefore meets its quality requirements for staff and centre resources and is subject to regular checks. Currently approved centres can be found on the ITEC website – www.itecworld.co.uk

The following assessment methods are used:

- ongoing assessments carried out by the centre which may include observation, expert witness testimony, reflective accounts, case studies, knowledge testing/professional discussion, projects, assignments and work products
- knowledge based assessments.

All assessments practice is verified by ITEC external quality assurers.

Entry requirements

ITEC exercises a policy of open access and does not set formal entry requirements for its qualifications. Centres are however required to ensure that learners are registered for a programme of study and examination at the appropriate level.
